By Bill Reed, President, Local 602

The devastation of Hurricanes Harvey and Irma has left tens of thousands of people in search of temporary housing. It is estimated that it will take years and billions of dollars to see any kind of recovery. Hit with gas shortages, skyrocketing prices for food and bottled water, looting and fraud, it’s impossible to imagine the emotional toll on the people most affected by the storms. Many have lost everything, and for them recovery may be a lifetime effort.

As of this writing, the death toll from the storm in Houston alone had risen to 37 as the latest statewide damage surveys revealed the staggering extent of the destruction. The Texas Department of Public Safety said more than 37,000 homes were heavily damaged and nearly 7,000 were destroyed. Over 325,000 people have already sought federal emergency aid in the wake of Harvey, while statistics concerning the impact of Hurricane Irma are just beginning to surface. In the U.S. Virgin Islands, residents were left without food and clean drinking water, putting them in a critical survival crisis.

And then Hurricane Maria devasted the U.S. Territory of Puerto Rico, destroying the electrical grid and causing untold suffering for our brothers and sisters there.

I’ve been asked what we as union members can do to help those in need during this difficult time. One suggestion that comes to mind is our contribution to the United Way. Here in Lansing, the Capital Area United Way is coordinating flood relief efforts through recovery funds created by United Way Worldwide. These funds will support local communities and the surrounding areas affected by Hurricane Harvey and Hurricane Irma. 100% of individual donations given to these recovery funds will be distributed to the affected areas.

United Ways in the affected areas will continue to raise money locally and respond to emerging needs. The national fund will complement those efforts and provide a single clearinghouse for individual and corporate donors who want to impact all affected areas. This will go a long way in helping local United Ways meet storm-related needs and support long-term recovery throughout the affected regions.

United Way has always supported disaster relief efforts, partnering with the American Red Cross, Salvation Army and others. You can find out more by visiting www.unitedway.org/recovery. Also available through the United Way is a text-to-give option (simply text UWFLOOD 41444).

One of the most depended upon charity organizations, the United Way helps millions of people by improving the quality of life for individuals and families in our communities and abroad.

Labor has always been welcome at the table. I volunteer my time, as do other local UAW members, as a board member of the Capital Area United Way in Lansing. We see firsthand the positive impact volunteers and donors make in the lives of those needing a helping hand. I encourage you to support the Capital Area United Way campaign in your worksite, or if retired to support this organization by volunteering your time and giving donations. Every little bit adds up to become an essential resource for those in need. Enough cannot be said for such a great organization, the Capital Area United Way is surely an organization worthy of our support.

Election endorsements

Our endorsed candidates for the November 7 election are in the box below. We would ask our membership to please consider your support in the best interest of working people in the entire Lansing area. The CAP Council goes into a screening process of each candidate who has asked for our endorsement. We ask about their positions on issues that concern working men and women. Also, community involvement and supporting labor issues. Thanks again in advance.

Election Endorsements

The UAW Region 1D Capital Area CAP Council has endorsed the following candidates for office in the city of Lansing in the November 7 election. Please consider voting for:

Mayor........................................... Andy Schor
City Clerk........................................ Chris Swope
City Council, Ward 2 ..................... Tina Houghton
City Council, Ward 4 ...................... Brian Jackson
City Council, At-Large .................... Kathie Dunbar

The annual Local 652 skilled trades get-together on September 25 was enjoyed by many members. Thanks to Alex McPherson (front row, fourth from left) for once again making it happen! Among others in the front row with him are Local 652 President Randy Freeman, Vice President Ben Frantz, and Financial Secretary Bob Smith.

Costco is coming to town

After two years of hard work, Costco has finally come to town and will be opening its doors on October 27. It is located at 5800 Park Lake Road in East Lansing. We need to support those companies that support labor and Costco is a labor-friendly company. A company that takes care of their people with good pay and benefits, unlike some of those others guys, like Walmart, that don’t.

Walmart is antipathy and spends millions of dollars each year on attacking unions and their members everywhere. They pay substandard wages and hire a bunch of part-time people so they don’t have to give them benefits. So get out and welcome Costco to our community.

Election endorsements

We have elections coming up on November 7 for our local government offices and we have endorsed the following candidates:

Mayor – Andy Schor
City Clerk – Chris Swope
City Council:
Second Ward – Tina Houghton
Fourth Ward – Brian Jackson
At Large – Kathie Dunbar

Please get out and support and vote for the candidates that support us.

We have the Making Strides for Breast Cancer walk coming up October 14 at the Lansing Capitol, starting at 9 a.m. I hope to see you all there.

October 21 at Local 652 is the UAW Region 1D Veterans Committee “Chili Cook Off.” It runs from 1–4 p.m.

Also on October 4th, in the parking lot, the Local 652 Recreation Committee will be holding their annual Halloween Trunk or Treat for all the kids. It will start at 2 p.m. and run until 4 p.m. So dress the kids up and bring them out. It should be a lot of fun for all.

LOCAL 652
Ben Frantz, Vice President

This is who I am

Hello brothers and sisters, my name is Ben Frantz and I am the new Vice President of Local 652. I’ve chosen to use this first article to provide a brief history of myself so we can be better acquainted. I was raised mainly on the governmental aid and by a few great people and community families who understood my position in life.

As a child I couldn’t comprehend how poor we were. I now use those memories often to provide myself a grounded perspective and to keep my efforts working hard in all aspects of life. As an adult, I realize that I can teach my three boys that determination and never quitting just because life can be difficult is not the Frantz way nor is it the way of the UAW.

Getting started in the UAW

Hiring into GM in July of 2002, I was fortunate to meet some people who have had many great things inside the Local. South Plant (building 32) is where Ted Krumm and I first met; he is now the Chairman of the GM Unit of 652.

Shortly after hiring in, I was moved to the Lansing Grand River plant where Mike Green and I met. Through these encounters and support and encouragement from these individuals and many more, I started my path of representing Lansing Grand River as an alternate District Committeeeman on the night shift.

A year after being elected the District 2A alternate, I ran for the District Committee spot which I retained through two more elections over a five-year span. Many individuals were placed in my path who gave me knowledge on both what to do as well as what to avoid as a representative of the people.

For the three years leading up to my election this past June as the Vice President, I represented the GM Unit of Local 652 as a Shop Committeeeman representing multiple Divisions. The progress from representing a small group of members on a single shift as a District Committeeeman to the multi-shift and multi-location responsibility of Shop Committee was one that I will always appreciate.

Learning experiences

It was a period filled with learning experiences of long-term goal achievements, patience and issue resolution. As a Shop Committeeeman, I have been fortunate to have made local negotiations an invaluable experience that will pay dividends in this new role of VP.

As I reflect upon this life journey, the similarities are striking and speak to the way of the UAW.

As an adult, I realize that I can teach myself working hard in all aspects of life. As an adult, I realize that I can teach my three boys that determination and never quitting just because life can be difficult is not the Frantz way nor is it the way of the UAW.

A well earned retirement

Hello all! I’d like to use my space this month to thank a group of Union Brothers and Sisters for their hard work, loyalty, and unionism. This group, now known as Yafeng Automotive Interiors, previously Johnson Controls and before that, Plastech, have been a part of Local 652 since 2008. Near the beginning of 2017 the members of Yafeng received the news that their plant was being closed in spite of being the top plant in many of the company’s metrics.

It was totally unexpected, and when the Local was notified of the closing the UAW attempted to intervene. Local 652 former President Mike Green, International Service Rep Jeff Brege, and Yafeng Bargaining Chairman Mike Patterson went to great lengths to find work to keep the plant operating.

In concert with the plant’s management team, work was identified and a list was given to corporate management. Their answer? Yes, they would gladly take all the work we could find, but it would NOT be done at the Lansing plant. Instead it would be distributed to other Yafeng plants that were remaining open. This is a bitter reminder that this industry is a competitive business and as such, it’s driven by money and profit.

What I can’t understand is a decision that seems to be illogical. The Lansing plant was tops in the corporation. They were #1 in profit margin, quality, throughput, scrap reduction, everything—and still they are closing it. Seems unusual until you notice that Yafeng had previously (July 2016) closed their #2 plant located in Whitby, Ontario.

I guess this should be a warning to the other plants in the corporation. Don’t be a top-level plant or you will be closed! That’s hell of a corporate strategy, isn’t it?

The real shame in this is the Brothers and Sisters in the plant who are some of the best union people you could hope for. They have more training and team building opportunities over the next year leading into negotiations.

Nomination notice

Hello Local 1753 Members. I again would like to thank everyone that joined a committee and has taken on leadership roles. This Union appreciates your participation.

I have a Nomination Notice for second shift GM Alternate Committeeperson and Eurest Group Second shift Committeeperson. (These openings are due to change in shift preference.)

Nominations will be accepted in person only at Local 1753, 3204 W. St. Joseph St. Lansing, MI.

Thursday, October 5 & 12, 2017 from 2 pm to 3 pm. The Election will be Thursday, October 26, 2017 at Local 1753 from noon to 1 pm and in the Plant from 2-4 pm. If necessary, run-off will be November 5, 2017, same times and places.

For people outside the Plant, we have plenty of overtime being used and some Saturdays being forced. Your leadership is settling in and being kept busy as well. I would like to encourage our members to come to the general meetings held on the third Wednesday after the first Sunday at 2:15 pm.

Your Local will be throwing the Halloween roast October 31st in front of the Plant Cafeteria during regular lunch times. We hope to see you there. Thank you and be safe.
The tyranny of the corporation

In her new book, Private Government, University of Michigan professor Elizabeth Anderson reports that audits by the Department of Labor have found “sweatshop-like conditions” in ninety-three percent of the garment factories in Southern California. She also writes about how in the poultry industry employees are denied relief breaks and are required to wear adult diapers. In the food service industry ninety percent of employees report that they have been sexually harassed, and nationwide millions of employees are subject to drug screening without cause.

It is possible, you ask? The answer is that almost all employees in this country are at will and are seen as accepting these conditions as consenting adults who are free to seek other employment. So long as people can quit at any time, management is free to treat them however they want.

This treatment includes terminating at will employees for any reason that is not discriminatory. Your boss doesn’t like your Bernie Sanders bumper sticker? You are fired. Put something on Facebook that is anti-Semitic or racist? You are fired. So long as you are not terminated based on your race, gender, or religion there are virtually no restrictions on employers’ power to terminate.

Most American workers just live with this. Fortunately, those of us who are blessed to have Unions and collective bargaining have means to combat the power of the company. But, only a small percentage of non-union employees still work under that protection.

The most striking thing about this, to me, is that the one proven method of combating these sorts of conditions, Unions, are shunned and derided by the people they could help the most. This is especially true of the right-wing base of the Republican Party.

Oddly, these same groups will rally against government intervention and interference in their lives and decry their “freedoms” being taken away. Yet, they place themselves under the hegemony of a private company and allow the corporation to subject them to restrictions that would be unconstitutional if imposed by the government.

Wake up, people! This country has too long been invaded by the pressures of unfettered capitalism and the corporations. The very freedoms the American Revolution sought to gain, the escape from tyranny, the right to representation within our government, and the freedom to pursue life as we see fit are now ceded to the corporations with the acquiescence of a vast number of Americans.

We, the members of the UAW, have protections and freedoms hard won by those who came before us; but these freedoms still lie out of reach for most of our fellow citizens. It is time now, more than ever, to protest beze on the heroism of the Labor Movement to those we live with, eat with, worship with, and work with. If people continue to march forward with eyes closed, what the four finding fathers fought and died to wrest from the King will continue to be ceded to the Corporation.

UAW sound car back on the road

Here’s quite an interesting article by Vince Piscopo from the UAW weekly "Spark"!

Looking at the 1949 Ford "Woody" station wagon, it’s easy to imagine it back in another era, a time when a local union would mount a huge speaker on the roof and broadcast messages to members as they left their plants, or maybe one might see it rumbling down a residential street on Election Day in west Detroit, encouraging people to vote for labor-friendly candidates.

Mike Kerwin, 93, a retired UAW international representative and Local 174 member, had driven that Ford while on Election Day duty. He was pulled out of his plant, American Metal Products Corp., to encourage members to vote and to carry election materials. The car, which has “UAW West Side Local 174 CIO” painted in light blue on both sides on its wood side panels, was a critical part of the local’s communications effort.

In addition to political work, it was used at rallies, parades, organizing and meeting places. Local 174 president and then president long before the car was purchased by the local. Either way, it’s a significant piece of our history. Cheryl Bassett did a lot of driving in that car. She made a really cool hot rod out of it, bought the wood side panels, was a critical part of the local’s communications effort.

On health care

As we were going to press, the Republicans were trying to pass an even worse health care bill. Whether or not they get their way now, it’s worth keeping in mind the union perspective on this issue.

There are a number of workers’ health care programs that allow children to grow into their potential, and that allow grandparents to be an active part of family life.

We have taken steps to protect our health care system, but imperfect steps—toward providing comprehensive, affordable health coverage for all. Today, the share of Americans who are uninsured is at a historical low. The Affordable Care Act continued the impact of workers’ health plans, strong Medicare and Medicaid programs, and the Affordable Care Act’s protections against unaffordable private insurance.

Still, too many people do not have health insurance. Medical care and prescription drug prices are too high, which drives up the cost of health insurance and sticks working people and retirees with exorbitant deductibles, co-pays and co-insurance.

Now, Republicans are trying to ram their ill-conceived plans through Congress in long sessions. These plans will be taxed and federal health care funding will be raised to give huge tax cuts to the wealthy and corporations.

We will continue to advocate for affordable health care for all Americans and to continue to work to strengthen the health protection programs that provide vital care to millions of children and seniors. —afcio.org

UAW resource

Maybe you’ve been to the uaw.org site, but have you explored all it has to offer? There’s a tremendous amount of information and assistance for all manner of union matters, interests and activities. Want to check the UAW Constitution? It’s under the dropdown menu. Under the Members dropdown, you can learn about the standing committees, the history of the UAW, educational resources, health and safety, and a whole lot more—including “Labor Lab.” Labor Lab examines core issues of building a strong union and highlights the experiences and best practices in our union. Check it out, you may be amazed at all there is to learn.
Greetings, sisters and brothers. I hope today you are all well with the passing of the hurricanes, fires, floods, and the disasters in our country. Thank you to everyone for providing ways to help the victims. I would like to thank everyone that took the time to call their Congressional representatives about the affordable health care. With differences made, we still have it but the difference was made by sticking together and making all those calls. But our fights are not over. This bill is going to be revisited and we have to do it again.

Senator Sanders is introducing a bill that is health care for all. It reflects the health care that Canada and all the other developed countries in the world have. When this comes to a vote, we need to again call our Congressional representatives and ask them to please pass it. We have to remember the teaching of our union movement that “An injury to one is an injury to all.”

With Halloween coming up and the holidays, I ask that you all please purchase products that are labeled “Made in the USA” so we can keep our people working.

Also on one more note, we will be meeting on the third Wednesday of the month at noon for a lunch potluck and a meeting, followed with a good time of Bingo.

Peace, love and justice. In solidarity, Marta Bobillo

Mike Bauer

1753 retirees

Hello, everyone. The leaves are turning, the fall is almost on us. I will fill you in on what we have been up to. Annually, we have a picnic, and we did this year. Traditional style, we had hamburgers and dogs on the grill. Thanks as always to the chefs and all the people who helped make it a fun day. Dale won the dessert contest; as you know, chocolate is always a favorite. We also had some raffle prizes.

We’ve had meetings with great discussions on fraud against seniors, including the IRS or the police calling you for money. In fact, they won’t give you a cold call, only if you have previously dealt with them on a specific item. Many folks gave examples where they thwarted wrongdoers. The best was a call about a hurt child, possibly a niece. Because of what was taught at our meeting, Norm asked, “Do you mean Suzy?” And the voice said yes, so he knew he had them, for his nieces did not have that name. You get the idea that also, be sharp, don’t give info or money over the phone.

We also have some shared interest in some of the news items we see on TV or the internet. When they were talking about cuts to Social Security and Medicare we sent postcards to our representatives in Washington saying hands off! This affects everyone; this is our future.

August saw the luncheon at the Royal Scot. This was our fourth time there, and each time we see more of our 1753 retirees come out. Is it their great food (succulent chicken)? Or our fabulous cookies? And bonus this year, we had cake that was provided by Costco. They’re moving into our area and we hope they will unionize here and join us in brother- and sisterhood. Also attending were the wonderful vendors from our health providers and credit unions. They provide prizes for our raffle as well as our host, Royal Scot. These are the people we trust and rely on every day, thank you.

At our September meeting, we had a great sunny day for getting the grill out and finishing off leftover dogs and burgers. With the help of Denny and many of the members we made a hotdog bar with chili, cheese and guacamole. Linda brought sauerkraut to top it off perfectly. It went so well with the salad dishes and fixings that our members brought to pass. Walt donated back to the local a free bowling card he won at the August luncheon, thanks. The raffle was a lot of fun.

Unfortunately, we heard of more scenarios of fraud with our friends at AARP. There were so many I made copies for everyone to take home. You should also pay attention to the Equifax security breach, follow the steps to see if you may be affected by it.

Next month on October 12 our retiree lunch will be catered. We wanted to do something a little different to encourage more attendance. It’s also a nice way to say goodbye to some of our snowbirds and get out of cooking lunch. We will still have an opportunity for coffee and donuts, 12 noon lunch, and 1:00 meeting. Hope to see you there.

1618 retirees

Hi out there, all you wonderful people. Just got me a new walker, which I needed. Lucky me. I sure like to go out in my little pontoon boat. If you want one, come on over.

Once again, the Area Retirees Council did a great job with the annual luncheon. Good food, lots of drawings, good friends, lots of laughs and hugs. My daughter Mariann Anthony said the prayer. Plan to be there next year, the retirees are the best! We are all a little sassy and a little older, but that’s okay! Our thanks to all who made it to the event.

Conferences to the family of Helen Estell Cleeves at age 75. A good friend, as was her daughter Debbie. Conferences to the family of Richard Smith, age 78. He leaves his wife of 47 years, Arlene who worked at LAFCU. His father-in-law was Maynard Kempf. Whenever they sent him back to Plant 2, he would bring two donuts—one for him and one for me on our break. He will be missed.

Conferences to the family of Joyce Coats, a good neighbor and wonderful friend. She sold Watkins for years and I friend. She sold Watkins for years and I. She was her daughter Debbie.

Beach Show trip and Charleston, South Carolina, October 1-7 and October 8-14, both leaving from Lansing.

If there is enough interest there is a盼望 there is a possibility of having a bus to the Detroit Auto Show in January. Details are still being worked out at this time. A LAFCU community champion

Delta Township firefighter and paramedic Matt Ash is honored at a Lansing Lugnuts LAFCU Fireworks Spectacular as the recipient of the 2017 LAFCU Community Champions scholarship. He is with his wife, Michelle, at left, and, from center, LAFCU’s Alyssa Sliger and Kelli Ellsworth Ethison.

Matt Ash of Lansing is the recipient of the 2017 LAFCU Community Champions scholarship awarded by the mid-Michigan credit union.

Ash is a firefighter and paramedic with the Delta Township Fire Department. He was awarded the $1,000 scholarship to Lansing Community College based on the essay about what compelled him to serve his community.

“I cannot imagine doing anything other than serving my community as a first responder,” Ash said. “It’s a blessing and humbling experience to help those in need. The scholarship will fund continuing education that will keep me up to date with medical advancements and better prepare me for continued quality service.”

The LAFCU Community Champions program recognizes police, fire and medical first responders as well as current and veteran members of the military at Lansing Lugnuts LAFCU Fireworks Spectaculars.

The honorees receive free game tickets, the opportunity to throw the first pitch and in-game recognition on the field and on the stadium’s video-board.

United Way and the UAW

Dean L. Poggiali, Labor Liaison
Capital Area United Way

Greetings, same person but different role as a columnist for the Lansing Labor News (LLN). I truly appreciate the request from LLN Editor Harold Foster, who asked if I could continue to compose a few thoughts from the community services realm. I humbly accepted and will offer a few things to share time to time. Also many thanks go to long-time LLN staffer Tim Bogar for all his kind words and thoughtful conversation.

With it being late summer/early fall we are in the throes of worksite United Way campaigns. As I compose this we have already completed several campaigns. The Alliance and RSDC Units for Local 724 have wrapped up with good results. We have also conducted round one of outreach at Ryder. The Ryder corporate office would like to be more engaged with the local campaigns so we will be out at the facility later this month and/or earlier in October.

Upcoming drives at Dakotta and Woodbridge are forthcoming. One particular positive note is the campaign at the newly organized UAW worksite Kirchhoff Automotive. Sometimes this takes a while, but we had the UAW Region Servicing Rep Brian Bosak advocating for us; so we will be at Kirchhoff in October. Also, the newly organized facility, Faurecia, will hopefully be on board as well. Thanks go to Tony Chandler for assisting with this as well.

At the recent UAW MI State CAP conference a collection was taken by the delegates to assist those impacted by Hurricane Harvey. In a little over ten minutes, over $1,200 was collected. This again shows the great spirit and commitment to community of the UAW and its members.

The highlights of this event, Hurricane Irma hit. We have fielded several calls about what is the best way to help. That is a personal choice, but you can research options through the local United Way chapters and American Red Cross chapters as well. The thought has been to donate dollars in order to stimulate the impacted local economy. This way, donations of items may not be lost in the shuffle, especially if the local infrastructure is compromised.

Although it will happen before the LLN is delivered, the Capital Area United Way is coordinating efforts to help non-profits in the area to conduct some projects at their location. The annual Days of Caring utilizes community volunteers to help these projects get completed. Some of the projects will be cosmetic in nature, while others will major in scope.

Please feel free to contact me if anyone has any questions about the community and we can problem solve together.

Working with Sparrow and labor unions

By Claire P. Corr
Labor Community Liaison
Sparrow Health System

Greetings from Sparrow. I am thrilled to have been asked to write an article for the Lansing Labor News and to continue with a quarterly update. Thank you to Harold Foster and his team for recognizing the importance of supporting our hometown hospital and the position of the Labor Community Liaison at Sparrow.

Matt Ash of Lansing is the recipient of the 2017 LAFCU Community Champions scholarship. He is with his wife, Michelle, at left, and, from center, LAFCU’s Alyssa Sliger and Kelli Ellsworth Ethison.

By Hurricane Harvey. In a little over ten minutes, over $1,200 was collected. This again shows the great spirit and commitment to community of the UAW and its members.

Sparrow prides itself on the relationship with labor unions and has a deep appreciation for the attention to detail and the care that goes into every pipe that is needed to every containment room built for safety.

It is because of this relationship that Sparrow hired a Labor Community Relations Specialist. Over a five-year period, Sparrow has invested more than $285 million in construction and information technology projects.

Sparrow’s mission is to put the needs of their patients first to provide quality, compassionate care to everyone, every time.

Until next time, I will continue to update the UAW members about Sparrow initiatives at the CAP meetings. Please do not hesitate to call me if you have any questions or concerns.

I am available to speak or have a presence at your union meetings, your retiree meetings, conferences, and events. I am here to serve the union membership!

My contact information is: Claire.corr@sparrow.org or call my office phone: 517-364-3468.

Chicago labor unions help buy the Sun-Times

Editor’s Note: The AFL-CIO Label Letter does much more than publish lists of union products and services. It has useful info of all kinds for union members and supporters. Here’s an article that particularly resonated with us:

In June, a group of investors led by former Chicago Alderman Edwin Eisendrath, that included several labor unions, submitted a bid against Chicago Tribune parent company Tronc, Inc. to purchase the Chicago Sun-Times and weekly Chicago Reader.

Eisendrath and the group of investors, which includes several labor organizations and about a dozen other investors, made a bid of $15 million to buy the Sun-Times and Reader from Tronc, LLC.

The group makes the bid in opposition to its view of Tronc’s ownership of the Sun-Times, Reader and other media assets.

David Roeder, consultant for the Chicago News Guild, which represents reporters and other media members said that they were “elated that there is at least one bidder other than Tronc.” We just hope the Department of Justice (DOJ) will look at this and see there are better alternatives to Tronc out there.

The DOJ’s Antitrust Division was involved in the Sun-Times purchase because of its opposition to a single entity controlling multiple media operations in the same market, as would have been the case if the Sun-Times were sold to Tronc.

In July, the Tronc, LLC, which included Bob Reiter of the Chicago Federation of Labor said that the group had met a DOJ deadline to prove that it has funds to operate the newspaper by saying that investors had raised in excess of $11.2 million. The DOJ released a statement saying that the “public sale process resulted in an alternate buyer of the Chicago Sun-Times.”

The Chicago Sun-Times, the Chicago Reader, and Answers Media, a digital production center.

Among the union groups involved in the purchase were:

The Chicago Federation of Labor, the third-largest labor council of the AFL-CIO in the United States, representing some 300 local unions, comprised of over half a million union members in Chicago and Cook County.

LIUNA Chicago Laborers District Council represents a diverse group of over 20,000 hard working men and women in the construction, municipal, and industrial sectors, belonging to fifteen Laborers Locals in the nine counties covering the Chicagoland area.

The Chicago Regional Council of Carpenters Labor & Management Committee represents tens of thousands of working men and women throughout 72 counties in Illinois and Eastern Iowa. Members include professionals trained in these specialties: General Carpenter, Residential Carpenter, Exhibit and Display Installer, Interior Systems Carpenter, Lather, Cabinetmaker and Millworker, Flooring Installer, Pipe Driver, Millwright, Insulation Installer, Shingling and Siding Installer, and Concrete Forming.

Editor's note: It was big news in August when a UAW organizing drive in Mississippi was defeated. Much of the media did not tell the whole story. Here is background information, along with future plans, from the UAW.

CANTON, Mississippi — Following an unprecedented campaign of corporate threats and intimidation, Nissan employees fell short in their bid for a union.

In a two-day election in early August supervised by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), blue-collar employees at Nissan’s Canton plant voted 2,244 to 1,307 against employee representation. Voting began less than a week after the NLRB issued the latest in a series of unfair labor practice complaints against Nissan.

“The courageous workers of Nissan, who fought tirelessly for union representation alongside community and civil-rights leaders, should be proud of their efforts to be represented by the UAW,” said Dennis Williams, president of the UAW. “The result of the election was a setback for these workers, the workforce that was comprised of in-tense scare tactics, misinformation and intimidation.”

Nissan’s many threats

In its latest complaint against Nissan, the NLRB alleged that the company recently threatened a loss of wages and benefits if employees support a union, threatened closing of the Canton plant if employees support a union, interrogated employees about union support, promised increased benefits and improved working conditions if employees oppose a union.

During the days and weeks leading up to the union election, Nissan’s unfair labor practices significantly intensified at the Canton plant — one of only three Nissan facilities in the world, including two in Tennessee, where workers are not represented by a union.

Acting on behalf of Nissan employees and in response to the events of recent weeks, the UAW filed a new round of unfair labor practice charges with the NLRB shortly before the polls closed in Canton at 7 p.m. CDT.

The charges allege additional violations of the National Labor Relations Act, including widespread surveillance of worker union activity, threats that benefits would be taken away if the Nissan Canton workforce votes for UAW representation, termination of a pro-union Kelly worker, threatening another worker that she could be terminated if the UAW was to become the representative of Nissan workers, a threat that UAW’s bargaining with Nissan is futile and Nissan’s denial of equal access to voters.

Moreover, the union is asking the NLRB to proceed with a trial to stop Nissan’s serial commission of unfair labor practices in Mississippi.

Beginning in November 2015, the NLRB issued a series of complaints against Nissan and the company’s temp-worker agency Kelly Services, alleging that they are “interfering with, restraining and coercing employees in the exercise of their rights.”

Currently, the complaints are awaiting trial by an administrative law judge. If Nissan is found to have committed the unfair labor practices that are alleged, the NLRB can go to federal court and seek a binding court order against Nissan that will stop the company from committing such unfair labor practices in the future.

“We’re disappointed but not surprised by the outcome in Canton,” said Gary Casteel, secretary-treasurer of the UAW and director of the international union’s transnational department. “Despite claiming for years to be neutral on the question of a union, Nissan waged one of the most illegal and unethical anti-union campaigns that I’ve seen in my lifetime.”

Casteel added: “Clearly, Nissan will not honor workers’ right to be free of coercion and intimidation without a binding court order requiring the company to stop.”

Nissan employees, with legal and technical assistance from the UAW, on July 11 announced the filing of an election petition with the NLRB. Almost immediately, Nissan managers and supervisors stepped up threats and intimidation inside the plant.

Beginning in mid-July, Nissan supervisors pressured employees with anti-union messages in group and one-on-one meetings. The company broadcast anti-union videos inside the plant instructing workers to “Vote No” and launched a sizable anti-union cable-television buy in the central Mississippi media market.

Nissan made implied threats to close the Canton plant if workers unionized and threatened employees with layoffs if they unionized — similar to the unfair labor practices previously alleged by the NLRB. Additionally, after examining contact lists for Nissan employees — which are required by the NLRB to be shared with union organizers — the UAW found large numbers of errors, including inaccurate names, mailing addresses and phone numbers.

“On top of Nissan threatening and intimidating employees inside the plant, the company gave us lists that were terribly flawed with inaccurate information which complicated efforts to distribute accurate information outside the plant,” Casteel said. “Nissan had unlimited captive-audience access to workers in the plant, but its faulty lists limited the ability of the union to contact workers by phone, email or at home.”

Looking ahead: The UAW and the Mississippi Alliance for Fairness at Nissan (MAFFAN), a coalition of faith and community leaders, pledged to redouble efforts to work with labor allies at Nissan plants around the world to keep pressuring the company — and to educate the French government about Nissan’s threats and intimidation against its predominantly African-American workforce in Mississippi.

With an approximately 20 percent stake in Renault, the French government is the largest shareholder in Renault, which in turn is the largest shareholder in Nissan.

“American workers need champions now more than ever,” Williams said. “The workers of Nissan deserve the job security, safe working conditions and collective bargaining power that come only from belonging to a union. The UAW will continue to be on the frontlines of that fight for all workers.”
